

PLAYHOUSE NORTHWEST ACTING SCHOOL PRESENTS

"CAMERA ACTING FOR KIDS"

INTRODUCTORY ACTING

This one week camp will encourage your children to use their imagination and to develop the techniques and confidence they need to create believable performances for the camera.

This camp teaches the fundamentals of acting by using basic techniques and fun acting games. Children participate in class and work on improving their basic skills for auditions, improvisation, martial arts/fight choreography, Meisner technique and scene study.

By the end of the week, all of our students will have the opportunity to demonstrate the skills they have learned by participating in their very own short film production. This student production will be cast, written, rehearsed, taped, and edited. Professional writers, directors, and make-up artists will be involved, as well as the film and television students from Central Washington University's film school.

So ... get ready to break out the popcorn!

LISA SKVARLA is the founder of Playhouse Northwest Acting School. She received her degree in Television Production and Communications from Clarion University in PA. She is a SAG/AFTRA actor and a certified stunt person. She has appeared on numerous national television shows including "Northern Exposure," "Bill Nye the Science Guy," "Case Closed" and the Discovery Channel's "The Worst Thing That Ever Happened to Me." She also has appeared in numerous commercials, industrials, web series and theater productions. Lisa is a 3rd degree black belt in tae kwon do and the proud owner of Lee's Martial Arts in West Seattle. For the past 3 years she has served as the chairwoman for the American Women's Self-Defense Association and has taught self-defense and rape prevention to women and girls across the country.

THERESE HENNING earned a BFA in Acting from Fredonia University. She has served as the drama specialist at several Seattle area schools, including Brighton and Three Tree Montessori. Therese was a faculty member at Seattle Children's Theatre for almost a decade. She has also taught at Village Theatre and Youth Theatre Northwest. Therese has returned to acting and teaching after a short hiatus while raising her son, Luke. Therese was bit by the acting bug when she was in fifth grade when she was cast as Peter Pan in her school's play. She is passionate about helping children own their creativity and believes it is nothing less than magic when a group of actors create art together. She is honored to work on this project and is looking forward to the magic we will make on film.
